In regard to the right of way through the city for the Tennessee and Paducah railroads, we were mistaken in our editorial of Saturday. These railroads have right of way already and have only been detained from putting down the rails because of the attitude of the city government, which, under Mayor Johnson's administration, refused to allow the existing grades of the streets to be interfered with, but was perfectly willing to allow the roads to make their connection either by trestle-work above the streets or by a tunnel under, either of which plans will very likely be adopted. Something must be done, and that speedlly, or else Memphis must prepare to lose more heavily than ever of the trade of the surrounding country. We need both a union freight and passenger depot where there may be quick exchanges without the trouble and expense of the hauling and transportation which makes so large a draft upon the pockets of shippers and passengers. We must be either up with the times, or "take a back seat," and see others enjoy the prosperity now almost within our grasp. Now is the time for us to work. We have a better prospect than ever.
